Pet First Aid and CPR Seminar

Who: Natalia Morgan, Pet Tech CPR, First Aid Training Instructor

What: One day hands-on seminar on Pet First Aid. Instruction and practice on how to perform emergency techniques on your family pets.

When: February 6, 2021, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Bring a sack lunch.

Where: J.P. Jones Community Center, 2400 Rickert Street, Fairbanks, Alaska 99701. Room 109

Why: Be prepared to help your pet in emergency situations. When hiking, walking in parks, or even encountering wildlife in your yard, it is essential to understand how to stabilize and prevent further injury.

How: Lecture and hands-on practice using individually assigned lifelike dog models. There will be room for twelve students in this class room in order adhere to best Covid-19 Practices. Students will be required to wear masks.

The cost for this Seminar is $100.00 per student. There are no auditing spots.

In addition to having 12 students (first come/first served) signed up for the seminar there will be two alternates. If you are too late for the original sign up, contact Wendy Uzzell at wendy.uzzell@gmail.com and she can get you waitlisted.
